About the Voice AI Symposium

The Voice AI Symposium – Voice as a Biomarker of Health is a one day interactive event presented by the Bridge2AI-Voice consortium. It is a unique opportunity to connect with all stakeholders invested in voice biomarkers including industry, startups, academia, researchers, patients, patient advocacy groups and underserved/underrepresented communities where everyone will have “their voices heard”.

Unlike traditional conferences where participants sit through a line-up of presentations pertaining to specific research, this interactive symposium will gather key stakeholders to discuss topics related to Voice AI research including clinical evidence and technology, applications for health tech and healthcare, ethics and legal implications and trust in AI solutions through panels and interactive forums.

Voice biomarkers are gaining an exponential (mounting) interest in academia, tech and pharma and come with fascinating and difficult ethical and legal questions that remain unanswered. Come have a seat at the table, have your voice heard, and interact with experts in the field.
